

oasis communication technologies

Oasis Communications Technologies is a unique system integrator specializing in the design, implementation and maintenance of highly complex communications systems.

Established in 2006 by three former executives of Israel's largest ISP (Internet Gold), today Oasis serves over 100 major customers worldwide, including leading international communication service providers and governmental agencies.

Oasis focuses on three main fields: Data and System Networking, Voice (TDM & VoIP) and Security. With decades of experience implementing latest products and technologies, the company's designs and integrates data, voice, video and security solutions.

Unlike many other integrators who deliver customized 'one size fits all' packages full of currently unnecessary services, Oasis provides truly unique, tailor-made solutions that are specifically designed to meet the customer's exact needs – often making better use only of their existing infrastructure. With a core group of highly trained system engineers, technicians and operations specialists, Oasis provides services throughout every aspect of a project, from initial consultation and audit, through design, creation and implementation, to complete turnkey solution delivery - with no work interruption. Oasis also works with several partners to provide best-of-breed solutions for its clients.

Flexible, reliable and highly cost-effective; Oasis provides the most creative solutions for the demanding environment of today's rapidly changing communication world.
